From the Pastor

Donnie Moore was one of the best friends I have ever had, yet I still had no idea as to the extent of the mental and emotional health issues he was facing. Some people have heart disease, Donnie had some brain disease. But as you can see, even close friends have difficulty talking about mental health issues because of the tremendous stigma attached. However, it is past time that we stop stigmatizing and high time we start realizing that our society is facing an avalanche of mental and emotional health issues due to several factors, not the least of which is how we have moved the moral standards around or as Proverbs says, "the ancient boundary stones."

Cindy Moore, Donnie's widow, has been preparing to tackle this huge giant of a problem through her own journey of the last year and a half, and today she is very courageously stepping into our pulpit to share with us what she has been learning. Donnie was always the main speaker, and today for the very first time, it's Cindy. Let's press in closely today and listen carefully. The Lord is going to use Cindy in a powerful way to bring clarity on the best way for us, both individually and corporately, to be prepared to help people who might be struggling.

As you know, I personally have struggled with emotional health for many years now. I can't wait to hear what our Father has been downloading to Cindy that will help us all. Please limit any moving around once she begins to speak. Thank you.

Blessings,

Pastor Randy & Pam
