

From the Pastor

I wonder how many things I'm gonna get schooled on when I get to Heaven, things I thought I was so spot on about that I got dead wrong. Take the Apostle Peter for instance. On the Mount of Transfiguration, he seemingly blurts out something about building temporary shelters in a place they were only visiting for a few hours. God shows up to quiet him down because he is so excited.

Good ole enter every room mouth first Peter. You know what, I've changed my mind. I think he was right! I think he saw Jesus in all of His glory, and Peter right then and there, figures out that the One he had just referred to as the Christ, the Anointed One, was also Almighty God who came to tabernacle amongst us human beings.

A tabernacle was a temporary dwelling place that in the OT was erected quickly and then moved to multiple locations. Peter figured it out on that mountain that God had come to temporarily dwell amongst us, and to commemorate this he wanted to build what? Yeah, some tabernacles.

Peter was a mess, like I'm a mess from time to time (how about you?). But there's so much he was redeemed from and there was so much he got right. Don't ever forget, when his turn came to give up his life, he chose to be crucified upside down. Go stand on your head for even one minute and let that kind of devotion settle deep in your bones. Stop giving Peter a hard time. Peter got it right...

Blessings,

Randy & Pam
